

Ultimate Guide to Air Canada Senior Discount - FAQs 2025

Air Canada does NOT offer any official senior discount in 2025 and seniors must rely on seasonal promotions, early booking, and flexible travel dates to secure lower fares. There is no specific age requirement for senior discounts on Air Canada because the airline does not operate a senior fare program and older travelers must instead use Aeroplan points, fare tools, and promotional offers to save. Seniors can still reduce travel costs by using the Air Canada Low Fare Finder and comparing Economy, Comfort, and Signature Class fares for the best value.

Booking early provides the lowest prices on Air Canada flights and signing up for fare alerts allows seniors to take advantage of sales immediately. Aeroplan points are extremely beneficial for seniors enabling redemptions for flights, upgrades, and partner airline routes across the Star Alliance network. Air Canada frequently releases discounted award seats especially during off-peak travel seasons preferred by older travelers.

Seniors should also explore Air Canada's travel bundles and fare categories which may lower total travel costs when adding bags, seat selection, or priority services. Aeroplan eUpgrades offer additional comfort making long flights more enjoyable for seniors. Even without age-based discounts seniors can still secure affordable pricing through loyalty miles, early planning, and flexible travel options.
